

SERVICE OVERVIEW

Hull Site Services provides professional English-to-Spanish document translation for government agencies and prime contractors. We specialize in culturally neutral Latin American Spanish suited for diverse Hispanic audiences across the United States. Every translation is performed with attention to government and legal register, ensuring that official terminology, regulatory language, and formal tone are preserved accurately throughout.

Our services extend beyond translation to include desktop publishing (DTP) and document formatting, delivering final products that match source layouts precisely — from multi-column government forms to public-facing pamphlets and handbooks.

NIGP CLASSIFICATION

961-75 — Translation and Interpretation Services

DOCUMENT TYPES

- Government forms and applications
- Employee and policy handbooks
- Public-facing pamphlets and brochures
- Regulatory and compliance materials
- Instructional guides and manuals
- Official notices and public communications

QUALITY ASSURANCE PROCESS

Dual-Review Workflow

Every translation undergoes a two-stage review: initial translation followed by independent quality review for accuracy, consistency, and register compliance. No document ships without both stages complete.

Terminology Glossary

We maintain project-specific bilingual glossaries to ensure consistent translation of key terms across all documents within an engagement. Glossaries are developed collaboratively with the client at project kickoff and updated throughout delivery.

Format Preservation

Source document layouts, formatting, tables, and visual elements are preserved in the translated output. DTP formatting ensures the final deliverable is print-ready and visually identical to the original.

Culturally Neutral Latin American Spanish

We use a standardized Latin American Spanish register free of region-specific colloquialisms, ensuring broad comprehension across all Spanish-speaking populations in the U.S. market.
